

The Study of Legal Cooperation in Environmental Governance Mechanism in Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macau Greater Bay Area

Feng Zhehua Zhan Pengwei

(pp. 91)

The construction of Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macau Greater Bay Area has been included in the national strategic plan. Except to focus on economic, culture and social development, we should also pay attention to the environmental governance. Due to Guangdong, Hong Kong and Macau are under the influence of the same ecological environment, it is necessary for Greater Bay Area to carry out an environmental cooperative governance to build a beautiful bay area. Constructing the Legal Cooperation in Environmental Governance Mechanism in Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macau Greater Bay Area is of great value in enriching the practice of ruling the country by law in an all-round way, creating a good ecological environment for the construction of Greater Bay Area, and broadening the practical path of building a magnificent cause in beautiful China. However, Guangdong, Hong Kong and Macau need to overcome the institutional obstacles caused by the three jurisdictions and the inconsistent legislative authority. In order to ensure the long-term operation of environmental governance cooperation in Great Bay Area, we should follow the principles like mutual benefit and win-win, equal consultation and green development to enact the norms governing environmental cooperation in the Greater Bay Area, clarify the division of responsibilities among different regions, and carry out environmental education and law popularization activities, which ensure the long-term operation of environmental governance cooperation in the Great Bay Area.

Strategies to "go global and attract foreign investment": Research on the Development Model of Macau's Traditional Chinese Medicine Industry under "The Belt and Road" initiative

Kou Seng Man Iong Weng Ian Choi Tong Chan Kim Wai (pp. 119)

With the introduction of "The Belt and Road" initiative, the Chinese medicine industry has been further developed in countries along the route. In recent years, with the support of the central government, the Macau SAR Government has vigorously developed the Chinese medicine industry with its own advantages, and has accumulated certain experience in the field of policy, industry, education and research. On the other hand, in the process of developing the Chinese medicine industry, there are still many obstacles. For this reason, this paper analyzes the history, current situation and development obstacles of the Chinese medicine industry in Macau, and combines the strategies to "go global and attract foreign investment" to propose a series of feasible development models to further promote the development of the Chinese medicine industry in Macau.

Public Diplomacy and Macau as a Tourism and Leisure Centre

Rui Rocha

(pp. 149)

The importance of public diplomacy has been considered, both in political and academic circles, as a complementary approach to the official diplomacy of the non-state actors that promote internationally each country. This new way of publicizing the characteristics and potential of the countries in the context of international relations results, on one hand, from the evolution of the new information and communication technologies and the popularization of network communication in real-time; on the other hand, from the pronounced international interdependence of relations between public and private institutions, as well as between individual actors.

The author emphasizes the importance of the interrelationship between public diplomacy and the city branding of Macao in relation to the mission attributed to Macao by the 13th Five-Year Plan (2016-2020), as well as the need for its study as a domain of knowledge and research in the higher education institutions of the Macao SAR.

A brief analysis about the dilemma of teaching virtue and civil education at private schools in Macau

Un Kam Sok

(pp. 157)

The aim and purpose of this article is to explore the dilemma of teaching virtue and civil education at private schools in Macau in the past and now. It can submit some concrete suggestions to the DSEJ, schools and teachers. I expect this article can cause the public to pay attention and concern to the virtue and civil education. Through doing research, finding out the problems and raising some questions, it can let teaching virtue and civil education more smoothly, release the teachers' working pressure and promote the teachers' professional development in order to teach students' ideology and morality well.

An Empirical Study of the Life Stress of Inclusive Students' Parents in Macau

Tong Chi Man Lee Sung Yi Sze Tat Ming (pp. 179)

The purpose of this study is to explore the current situation of the life stress of inclusive students' parents in Macau, and understand the differences of parents' life stress in different contexts. The study included 337 inclusive students' parents, and statistics were performed using single-sample T-test, independent sample T-test, and one-way anova. The results show: 1)Parent's overall life stress is lower level, and their life stress such as "life experience", "interpersonal experience" level is also lower level; 2)Four background variables of the "parent-child relationship", "parent age", "relationship with spouse" and "type of child's disorder", have significant differences in parenting stress ($P < .05$). At last, make recommendations based on the results of this study as a reference for parents, schools and governments.

The Stanton affair, an alliance of the Portuguese and Chinese elites of Macao

David Tomás Afonso (pp. 203)

During the opium war (1839-1842) Macao faced several crises that put the establishment at risk against the two belligerent powers, China and Great Britain. With this short article, I intend to analyze one of these critical moments and how it culminated in a military intervention at the gates of Macao. We will see how the abduction of a British man can raise the whole question of the limits of the establishment as well as its jurisdiction.

With this article, we can see how the Holle affair proceeded, and most important the different views of the jurisdiction of the establishment. The first one is the Chinese dictated by a close foreign policy and a strick claim to the rent territory. Secondly, the Portuguese points of view that saw Macau as theirs and seek to challenge the Chinese jurisdiction in every turn.

Another intriguing aspect is the constant political and military pressure by the British forces, that sought any justification for placing military personnel in Macao and claiming the city as their own. It is then a policy of collaboration between the Chinese and Portuguese authorities that will seek to avoid a British military intervention in the city.
